Calendar and schedule management hasn't changed since the 1990's.

Seriously. I used a Palm Pilot and Microsoft Outlook back then, and nothing has changed.

That's absurd!

Have you heard of Kyugo?

Kyugo does calendar blocking based on activity types - for example, work during the day and socializing in the evening.

It provides a slick visual interface for planning that is more intuitive.

It also has a new version coming on ProductHunt shortly

Check it out today for iOS and Android!

It's tough making engaging training videos.

I'd know, since I'm a team lead in corporate training, and my team makes loads of trainings!

Layerpath lets you record a screen with a process or workflow and crafts engaging product demos: self-serve interactive product tours, a step-by-step guide, and an explainer video in minutes.

Say goodbye to juggling tools! Try Layerpath - they're launching today on ProductHunt!

Writing secure code is tough, and it's even tougher in the age of AI.
It's well known that AI writes code that is frequently riddled with security holes.
Humans do too, making tools that automatically fix issues in code more important than ever.

Pixee's Pixeebot provides automated, continuous security audits of your code for errors and vulns. They're launching today on ProductHunt, check them out!

Code security is complex work. Let Pixeebot handle it for you.

Pixeebot is currently in beta and has a waitlist to handle demand. Install now and we'll notify you when you're in (currently supporting Java and Python).
* AI features enabled by default. Learn more.

Just as Dependabot keeps your dependencies up to date, Pixeebot helps ensure your code is - and stays - secure. Once activated, Pixeebot immediately starts monitoring your repository and analyzing what it sees. It makes suggestions that are easy for your team to absorb, without any configuration up front. Security isn't your only job, so let Pixeebot help you ship secure code with minimal interruption.

Pixeebot is not a code scanner, and it's not going to send you reports. It just hardens your code and fixes stuff.

You don't review any findings, you just approve code changes!

Have you heard of Pixpic yet? It's a hot new AI headshot generator by Media IO that only needs five good photos to work with (less than the competition), and which generates headshots in multiple styles. You have to pay if you want a pro plan, but you can test it out for free!

It was a really simple and easy process..

First, I dragged eight photos into the interface. It automatically selected five and rejected three due to various reasons (angle)

Check out the amazing results I got!

I selected LinkedIn headshot mode, to use for my LinkedIn profile, but there are also a ton of other options - ID photo, profile photo, corporate headshot and more.

I also tried out the two new Christmas photo options, they're really cool!

Try it out yourself at <https://bit.ly/47el3Et>
